In Memoriam

FRANCES I. VERZOLA

Let not your heart be troubled:
Ye believe in God, believe also in Me.
In My Father's house are many mansions,
If it were not so, I would have told you.
I go to prepare a place for you.
And if I go and prepare a place for you,
I will come again, and receive you unto Myself;
That where I am, there ye may be also.

Despite an unimpressive record of two wins and seven losses, the 1966 Green Hornets played as hard as any team in the state. Experience, though was the one essential that this ball-club lacked. After the third game it was apparent that not enough second-year men were on the roster. Consequently, little mistaken that were due to inexperience resulted in several of our losses.

A great deal of credit must be given to Coach Parsons and Captain John Flammia, through whose efforts the team won the respect and admiration of many coaches within the Hockomock League.

Class History

Steven Kelleher, Norbert Lettl, Deborah Chace

1963 will long be remembered as an important year in world history. A test ban treaty was agreed upon; an American mountain-climbing team scaled Mount Everest; and the most important event of all—the Class of 1967 entered the hallowed halls of M. H. S. for the first time.

The Seniors, realizing the tremendous significance of the occasion, set about greeting the peagreen Freshmen with a royal welcome. Ribbons were distributed for us to wear; food was brought for us to eat (baby food, that is); and a poem was even written in our honor. Yes, every Freshman was required to repeat that poem to each Senior upon request. How well many of us remember kneeling in the corridors and reciting that exciting little verse.

That night the Seniors, showing unlimited hospitality, held a special dance for the Peagreens. Most of us, not wanting to seem ungrateful for the day's festivities, managed to attend the event. A good time was had by all and to Wendy Tessier and Charlie Scott went the prizes for most co-operative Freshmen.

The rest of our first year went very smoothly under the direction of: Walter Hovey, President; Charlie Colella, Vice-President; Pat Tartaglia, Secretary; and Jean Farquharson; Treasurer.

In May, we held our first dance, the Freshman Reception to the Seniors. Under the able guidance of Mr. Antosca and Mrs. Provost as our class advisors, the dance was a huge success. Thus we could start our next year with the knowledge that there was more in the treasury than an empty bank account.

The following September we returned to school as Gay Young Sophomores. Tanned and rested from a carefree summer, we were ready to begin a new year. Our new officers were President Walter Hovey, Vice-President Charlie Colella, Secretary Sue Guillette, and Treasurer Joanne Viscusi. Our officers did much that year to make our two dances both financial and social successes.

We really started to feel like a part of Mansfield High when, in April of '65, we were measured for our class rings. There was a good deal of anxiety in us as we waited to receive them in the following October.

After a grueling battery of finals and long, hot days in school, we departed in June for a well-earned summer vacation. Already, though, we were preparing for the coming September.

Our Junior year proved to be the busiest year of all. Our new class advisors, Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Brunelle, worked with Mr. Antosca, and with their help we met any and all tasks.

The elections from the previous year showed that Walter Hovey was still in charge, Charlie Colella was second-in-command, Kathy Sliney was taking the notes, and Susan Guillette was counting the money.

Our first adventure was the Sadie-a-go-go, which was, as all our other dances proved to be, a rousing success.

Next came the annual Junior candy sale. In terms of work, this was by far our most difficult task. After weeks of pushing candy, the returns were in and our treasury had more than doubled. Cheryl Bernard, along with Charlotte Sheaff and Robin Briggs, were given prizes for selling the most candy.

After receiving our class rings and holding several other dances, May was soon upon us. It was time for the gala social event of our high school career —the Junior Prom.

It was held on May 27, at the Blue Hills Country Club in Canton. During the course of the evening everyone had a good time. Kevin Fallon and Rita Fusco were crowned King and Queen.

In September, 1966, we re-entered M. H. S. for the last time. Now we held the coveted title of grand old Seniors.

We began the year by harassing the Freshmen on Initiation Day, smearing lipstick all over their faces, and feeding them baby food. One Senior got a little over eager, and lipstick was squished on the floor. This was the last initiation in the high school. The day ended with the Freshman Initiation Dance which was not only a social but a financial success as well.

Our co-editors of the '67 Hornet Yearbook, Jean Farquharson and Beth Ingram, began work under the supervision of Mr. Brandenburg. Starting in September, they worked right up until graduation.

Our Class Officers, President Paul Lemieux, Vice-President Steve Kelleher, Secretary Kathy Sliney, and Treasurer Joanne Viscusi, prepared for our next event—Hobo Dance. This was another great success. Prizes went to Charlotte Sheaff for a monster costume and Joe Frowhitter dresses as a baby in diapers.

Late in November the Senior Class Play, Ask Any Girl, was presented. Ann Giles did a wonderful job as Meg Wheeler. All the participants were praised for their marvelous performances, a result of many weeks of hard work.

Club '67, our major social event of the year, did not have a theme, but the cafeteria was decorated in dark green and aqua. A catered meal was served. Linda Thomas sang and a dance band provided the music. Approximately twenty-five couples attended.

During our last year, the school put on its first musical, Oklahoma, under the direction of Mr. Spencer Kelley. The lead parts were played by David Horton and Cheryl Everett, with outstanding performances by Seniors Jean Farquharson, Bill Metters, Greg Cauldwell, Debbie Hicks, James Burton, Sandra Piasecki, Alice Burt, Ann Giles, Kathy Sliney, and Beth Ingram.

In April, we had our first class meeting of the year. The purpose was to choose class colors and flowers. The vote taken the next week showed the class colors to be lime-green and yellow and our class flower as the daisy. The motto is: "By faith and faith alone embrace; believing where we cannot prove."

The prom was held at the Blue Hills Country Club on May 26. The tables were decorated with lime-green and yellow carousels. Mr. Gallo's band livened up the night by playing some popular tunes. Tony Flammia and Sue Guillette were crowned King and Queen. Everyone agreed the Prom was a wonderful success.

June 5 is Class Day and the Class Banquet, the same day, will be held at the Gloria Colombo Hall. June 7 is graduation.

So, as each class says good-bye and leaves the halls of Mansfield High School, so do we, the Class of 1967, with a fond farewell.

Class Prophecy

By Janet Poirier, Alice Burt, Edmund Westhaver

Today is a big day in the little town of Youngsboro, named after the illustrious politician James Young, who is Mayor of that exhilarating center of past demonstrations. Robin "Rabble Rouser" Briggs, "Fireball" Phyllis DeCruz, and their long time companion Linda Dike are now giving a demonstration to put initiation back in the old Mansfield High School.

Charging forth to break up the commotion is the woman crime fighter, agent Kathleen Sliney. Firing through the crowd, agent Sliney accidentally wounds our potential first woman astronaut, Miss Alice Burt.

"Bat Man" Bill DeBaggis rushes to the scene with his "Big Bruiser" to assist the wounded astronaut to the Cheryl Bernard County Hospital. This seems to be a very important institution, for as I continue my walk down the gleaming white halls I meet the noted journalists, Miss Deborah A. Corliss and Miss June E. Haskell, collecting valuable information for their next novel.

As I am accompanying the wounded astronaut to her room, I hear the strains of the famous dance band, "Gallo's Greats". In the band I notice, "Oh no!" Could it be that big "bopper" Bruce Kimball, with his old standby, Bobby Annese, assisted by their very able press agent Cynthia "Flash" Fisher.

Rolled out under the large spot light in our observation room, Alice is being prepared to receive an injection of L.S.D. named after Linda "Sunshine" Delaney because of the effects it has on people, especially men! This drug is now used to bring people out of severe comas and back into reality. Electrodes are being attached to her head so that we will be able to watch her thoughts on a screen. This screen is much like a television monitor.

The drug is now being administered by the famous doctor Steven Kelleher. Our astronaut is slowly losing contact with the outside world. We will now be able to follow her strange thoughts on the overhead screen. This invention was patented by that renowned Physicist William Prescott Ph.D.

The first image that appears on the screen is a very dark one. Nothing can be seen, but a constant drip, drip, drip can be heard. Slowly a picture forms. It seems to be one of Paris' famous sewer beds. Yep, sure enough it is, because there is Joey Albertini heading his gang of highly technical maintenance workers. (This is the name society now uses for ditch diggers.) Helping him is Danny "The Buster" Maxwell, Richard Cunningham and oh no, it couldn't be Walter Kashtan!!!

The scene then switches to an office just above them only on the other side of the world. There we find Pat Tartaglia just as good looking as ever, Debbie Hicks (could that be an original Coy diamond on her hand!), Cynthia Rossi, and Kathy Poirier still working at the Foxboro Company. They seem very happy even though they are getting a few gray hairs.

Alice, girl astronaut, is getting a bit restless now. Dreams containing familiar faces are getting more shocking. We move from the home front to high in the air where the "Aces of the Airways" are at it! Nancy Bliss and Judy Gordon are flying a plane with a new turbo-jet engine designed by John Romancier. The screen lights up, the engine conks out, and the jet crashes into a deserted subway tunnel. As Judy and Nancy stumble from the wreckage, they see a big black Lincoln pull away. The driver is none other than Carole Cataloni, noted hair stylist and escape artist. The girls hop on an old discarded "Naismith 500" Honda and follow Carole.

On their mad chase they pass Dale Brintnall's antique auto agency—which seems to be doing a booming business. He and his assistant Debbie Brown are doing well in life. The girls would like to stop but curiosity hurries them on.

Far in the distance we see a huge red object. What can it be? As we focus the screen more clearly, we notice Husky "Coy-the-Boy" McCoy and Dennis Nebo II O'Brien in Coy's red '55 Chevy. They seem to be heading toward that well-known hotel, the A&W Arms owned by Jackie Chambers and Mary Noonan.

There Miss Sandra "The Collector" Piasecki and the community property owner, Betty Molinari, usher them in quickly and show them to their rooms. Sandra is among other things a hairdresser for the establishment. All the records and bookkeeping are kept by the talented Leoda Scott.

Suddenly their attention is attracted to a huge brightly lit billboard, announcing the premiere of a new broadway musical directed by debonaire, suave, goodlooking Charles Eldon Colella. As we move nearer, the name appears—"The Three Stooges?" No, no! it's actually produced by three scientific engineers, Ed Westhaver, Don Moran, and Gary Robinson. Poor Robbie he is still trying to catch a U.F.O.! A list of credits is nailed to a wall of the marquee—Chris Dunner, famous model and dress designer has fashioned the entire ensembles for the case.

The distinguished cast of "Oklahoma Revisited", starring that age old lady Jean Marie Farquharson, who took time off from her head shrinking profession, to assist that eminent star of the broadway production David Carlton Horton. Also in the cast is that song bird of a kindergarten teacher, Cheryl Everett, with her long time friend, William Metters. Unfortunately, Greg Cauldwell had to fill in for Bill on opening night because of a regrown appendix.

The production was paid for by "Moat" Thayer, the illustrious millionaire and the industrious connoisseur of world affairs—Elizabeth Ingram. All of a sudden the screen becomes hazy and we can't make head or tails of Alice's thoughts.

We find that an adjustment is needed in the machine, so we call in Arthur "Larry" Keating, mechanic, to see if he can fix the trouble. Just in time the missing part is repaired.

This next scene seems to be in an Oriental setting. Who could we find here? Ah—yes Debbie Chace, girl humanitarian, is at work among the people bestowing her vast knowledge of judo among the poverty stricken. Her able companion, Linda Hebard, helps. I wonder if any of the other members of the class of '67 can be found in such humble jobs or in such fascinating surroundings?

Oh yes, there is Dawn Della Ventura visiting her old stand by Jim Griffin in Vietnam. Along with Mr. Griffin are some of our old classmates: Raymond Delliacano, John Austin, Joe Frowhitter, Steven "Bodee" McCoy, Ronald Riccard, and Sargent William "Wild Man" Tibbets.

The scene again switches and we are now at the Russian Kremlin. There the "Jones's Busters" Lyle Harlor and Edward "EDsta" Gentili have overthrown the Communist government and set up the Jones's Republic. However this government turns out to be more chaotic than any other civilized government in the history of the entire world. There is absolutely no control! However, Mark Alperin, with his assistant John Sloan, restores peace and order with his quick wit.

Living there with them as the famous U. S. Olympian Team are James Burton, the world famous tennis player, William Stephens and William Fusulo, track runners, John "Tony" Flammia, all around wonder, Greg "Frank" Sankey, the six foot seven inch pro basketball player, Donna Di Fiore, catcher for the Boston Bloomer Girls and Bill Porter cheered on by Jane Carbonetti and Marie Coughlin.

Then just by coincidence we remember that the World's Fair Expo '99 is being held in Russia. Having nothing better to do we decide to visit this wonderous display. However Alice's thought waves are becoming muddled and meaningless so we decide to take the time machine into the future ourselves.

To our amazement when we arrive we find that our United States Pavillion was designed by a fellow student—the salutatorian of our class, Mr. James F. Durant. He has now become a world renowned architect. We are next ushered into the pavilion by the two doormen Clarence Randall and Joe Stachelek.

Over in a corner we see what appears to be a spot-light. There we see Robert Charles Avery illustrating his new mini-dictionary. Right beside him is Miss Susan Guillette now employed by Revlon. Miss Guillette, who studied under the world famous hairdresser, Richard Francis Xavier Casey, is a hair stylist and expert on make-up. She is trying to demonstrate the best make-up for one's individual coloring and personality. "The favorite shades of hair this year," states Susan, "are lime green and yellow."

Feeling in the valley of fatigue because of iron poor blood (still a problem in this day and age), we decide to sit down and have a snack. Our waitresses are none other than Christine Lunn, the supervisor, and Paula Marvelle, and Ellen Cookin. Paula had decided that the telephone business was just not for her. Also we see Wendy Tessier enjoying herself making her mouth watering "Awful, awfuls". And you'll never guess who the meat cutter is—William "Nazi" Sarro!!!

Our eyes open in amazement as we see the World War Memorial, designed after the close of World War III. The head guides, Bruce Gordon and Roland "Punky" Sheaff, both noted historians, show us around. We notice that Mr. Sheaff, an ex-Marine, limps a little, possible from an old battle wound. We then decide to visit the Modern Education Pavilion. This pavilion demonstrates the tactics of a more liberal educational system.

This experimental school has Walter Anthony Hovey as principal, Paul Lemieux as Guidance Counselor, Sue Unger, French teacher, JoAnne Viscusi, elementary teacher, and Francis Faria and Peter Findlen as Physical Education teachers ... In this school behavior is left mostly up to the student. There is no dress code, but cleanliness and neatness are expected. The girls may wear either slacks or skirts and there are no restrictions as to the length of the boys' hair.

Smoking is prohibited except in designated spots. For instance, one may smoke outside after lunch or in the Student Activity Room.

We next see two foreign pavilions, one from Germany and one from Italy. The German Embassy is being graced with the presence of the German ambassador—Norbert E. Lettl, talented linguist. Philip DiMonte, "the little ole wine maker", is the representative for the Italian Pavilion.

Walking through this pavilion we notice a few married couples among the crowd of the younger generation. Well what do you know! Could it be Elizabeth DeLage, Dorothy Devnew, Candy Keast, Beth Mahony, and Donna Turner! These girls always wanted to get married and I guess their wish finally came true. Of course Judith Razee is among them but has been married for quite some time. She even has grand-children now.

We next run into Nancy Washburn, Debbie Shaffer, and oh yea Nancy McConnell wandering around in Richard Sargeant's artificial forest. On the other side of this forest our time machine is waiting to take us back to the observatory. Since we've seen all that we want of Expo '99 we decide to return.

Upon coming back to the present time we find all the doctors and nurses gathered around Alice trying to bring her around. Leslie Johnson, the medical assistant, is helping the nurses, Ann Giles R.N., Linda Pedini L.P.N., Peggy Roski R.N. and Janet Poirier R.N. Janet has to give Alice a few of her gentle shakes, but Alice eventually comes back to consciousness. Alice seems fine now, but wait! Oh here comes Joyce Spiezio now. Evidently she is business manager of the Cheryl Bernard County Hospital. She presents Alice with the bill which with good luck she may be able to pay by 1999!

EDDIE WESTHAVER leaves Miss Hannon's class arguing.

JAMES YOUNG leaves his vast knowledge of politics to next year's "Ernie."

On the 5th day of June, 1967, the class of 1967, asked us, the undersigned, to witness their last will and testament; and we now at their request, in their presence and in the presence of each other do hereunto inscribe our names as witnesses.
